Organized by:

A-Place - Nova University of Lisbon - IFILNOVA

"A confined place" is a programme of activities carried out by the European project A-Place from March to June 2020 focused on the perception and representation of places during lockdown using mixed media (photography, film, prints). The activities were done online in an educational environment, through an open call for artists and a competition for filmmakers. Following the presentation of the process and results, there will be a discussion on the expression of a global sense of place with artistic means and the creation of spaces to encourage artistic production using digital networks in times of confinement.

Participants:

Irene Aparicio, Nova University of Lisbon, Portugal

Luisa Bravo, City Space Architecture, Bologna, Italy

Ivone Ferreira, Nova University of Lisbon, Portugal

Leandro Madrazo, La Salle School of Architecture, Barcelona, Spain

Teresa Tourvas, Urban Gorillas, Nicosia, Cyprus

The nutcracker

My roommate using our window railing as a support for her dance practice. This pandemic increased our creativity in finding ways to use our home for our daily activities. This last month the apartment was transformed into a school, an office, a gym, a dance studio, a bar... Maintaining our usual routines during the lockdown helped a lot to our mental health.
